Honey Harvest Creates Buzz at Colvin Run Mill

Beyond its sticky sweet flavor, honey has provided mankind with a source of energy and nutrition for more than three million years. And don't be fooled, while honey may seem commonplace nowadays, its production is far from a simple process. On Sunday, October 14, 2007, the Fairfax County Park Authority invites you and your family to historic Colvin Run Mill from 2 to 4 p.m. to learn and experience the complexities of honey harvesting firsthand.

Participants will view live bees at work in their observational hive, sample the delectable golden spread on cornbread made with grain milled onsite, and maybe even catch a glimpse of the famous queen bee. This program is free and suitable for any age group.

Colvin Run Mill is located at 1017 Colvin Run Road in Great falls. For more information, call 703-759-2771.
